Development and evaluation of a food environment survey in three urban environments of Kunming
edited by Jacqueline Nivard

273 food establishments (163 restaurants and 110 stores) were surveyed.
http://urbachina.hypotheses.org/11107

Review of Religion and Chinese society
edited by Jacqueline Nivard

http://urbachina.hypotheses.org/11093

Urban planning goes rural edited by Miguel Elosua

Paper written by David Bray (Senior Lecturer in Sociology at the Department of Sociology and Social Policy of the University of Sydney), China Perspectives, 2013/3, p. 53-62.
http://urbachina.hypotheses.org/11120

Theorising Chinese urbanisation: A multi-layered perspective
edited by Monique Abud

Urbanisation in China and its rapid increase in recent decades as a result of industrialisation and globalisation are often conceived as a simplified process.
http://urbachina.hypotheses.org/11039
Funded under the European Commission’s Seventh Framework Programme, UrbaChina is a collaborative project managed by a consortium of 11 leading Chinese and European research institutions. UrbaChina analyses China’s urbanisation trends for the next 40 years and define possible future scenarios with reference to concepts of sustainability.

Members:
• CNRS
• East China Normal University
• Development Research Centre
• University of Birmingham
• Chinese Academy of Social Sciences
• LSE
• Chinese Academy of Sciences
• ISIS
• University of Lisbon
• People’s University
• Anhui academy of Environmental Science Research